Welcome to Beyond Twelve Gates by Rabbi Ze'ev Smason

Parshas Mishpatim February 6, 2016

"Say Hello to Nadine ... You're in for a Surprise!"

Say hello to Nadine, the receptionist. With her soft skin and flowing brunette hair, Nadine not only meets and greets visitors, smile, makes eye contact and shakes hands, but she even recognizes past guests and spark up conversation based on previous chats. What's so unusual about Nadine's behavior? Nadine, the world's most human-like robot, has recently begun work as a university receptionist. Powered by intelligent software similar to Apple's Siri or Microsoft's Cortana, Nadine is the brainchild of scientists at the Nanyang Technological University (NTU) in Singapore and is based on her creator Prof. Nadia Thalmann. Unlike conventional robots, Nadine has her own personality, mood and emotions. She can be happy or sad, depending on the topic. Want to meet Nadine? Click here: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=cvbJGZf-raY>

Prof. Thalmann, the director of the Institute for Media Innovation who led the development of Nadine, said social robots are poised to become more visible in offices and homes in future. "As countries worldwide face challenges of an aging population, social robots can be one solution to address the shrinking workforce, become personal companions for children and the elderly at home, and even serve as a platform for health care services in future." An expert in virtual humans and a faculty member from NTU's School of Computer Engineering, Prof. Thalmann explained, "....our team at NTU (has) been fostering cross-disciplinary research in social robotics technologies – involving engineering, computer science, linguistics, psychology and other fields – to transform a virtual human, from within a computer, into a physical being that is able to observe and interact with other humans. So in future, these socially intelligent robots could be like C-3PO, the iconic golden droid from Star Wars, with knowledge of language and etiquette."

Much has been written and debated on the question of human nature. The Torah states that humanity was created in the image of G-d. What does it mean to be created in the image of G-d? What is it in our nature that is G-d-like? Every person has a moral conscience, an inner voice that reminds us of the right thing to do. Making proper choices is a lofty expression of our free will, and demonstration of the recognition of our Divine image.

Parshas Mishpatim Exodus 21:1 -- 24:18

Following on the heels of the Ten Commandments, this week's Torah portion deals primarily with civil law. Like the realm of the ceremonial, our worldly and common activities must be infused with holiness and observed carefully. Included among the civil laws discussed in the portion are: Penalties for causing bodily injury to another person and damaging his property; laws regarding borrowers; the mitzvah to show sensitivity to the poor and to offer them free loans; and laws relating to the honest dispensation of justice. After mentioning the mitzvos of Shabbos and Shemittah (the Sabbatical year), the portion continues with a brief discussion of the three pilgrimage festivals -- Passover, Shavuot and Sukkos. The Torah then returns to the revelation at Mt. Sinai. The Jewish people declare their commitment to do whatever G-d commands with the famous phrase "Everything G-d has said, we will do and we will listen." The portion concludes with Moses' ascending the mountain, where he will remain for forty days and forty nights to receive the rest of the Torah.

Rabbinic Ruminations

Air Force One is one of the most recognizable symbols of the American presidency. Emblazoned with the words "United States of America," the American flag, and the Seal of the President of the United States, it is an undeniable presence wherever it flies. "Air Force One" isn't technically a plane: It's simply the radio call name for any U.S. Air Force plane carrying the president of the United States. Today, there are actually two nearly identical customized Boeing 747 jets that regularly fly under this designation, each with an estimated cost of $390 million. The planes are almost as tall as a six story building, and as long as a city block. The three-leveled "flying Oval Office" has 4,000 square feet of interior floor space, including a conference room, dining room, private quarters for the president, offices for staff members, a medical operating room (a doctor flies on every flight), press area, and two food galleys that can provide 100 meals. Air Force One costs taxpayers $206,337 every hour it is in flight.

Perhaps most remarkable about Air Force One are its security features. The plane is a military aircraft, designed to withstand an air attack. Outfitted with electronic counter measures to jam enemy radar, the plane can also eject flares to throw heat-seeking missiles off course. Heavy shielding on the plane is tough enough to protect the wiring and crucial electronics from the electromagnetic pulse associated with a nuclear blast. Unlike a normal 747, the plane has its own retractable stairways that open onto the lower deck, and crew members and staff climb internal staircases to get to the upper decks. The plane also has its own baggage-loader. With these additions, the plane never has to depend on an airport's facilities, which could be a security risk. Another special addition is the in-flight refueling connection. As with the B-2 and other combat craft, in-flight refueling gives Air Force One the ability to stay up in the air indefinitely, which could be crucial in an emergency situation.

In Psalm 27, King David writes, "One thing I asked from G-d and that I shall seek - that I dwell in the House of G-d all the days of my life ..." Certainly, King David's primary concern was the security and spiritual and physical prosperity of his people. However, Dovid Hamelech asked not only for physical sustenance and security but protection from the hubris that affects so many successful leaders as well. That is the "House of G-d" in which he wants to travel at all times, be it in on the battlefield or in the palace courts.

Quote of the Week

It is only imperfection that complains of what is imperfect. The more perfect we are the more gentle and quiet we become towards the defects of others. -- Joseph Addison, (d. 1719) English essayist, poet, playwright, and politician.

Joke of the Week

Morris Schwartz is dying and on his deathbed. He is with his nurse, his wife, his daughter and 2 sons, and knows the end is near, so he says to them:

"Bernie, I want you to take the Beverly Hills houses."

"Sybil, take the apartments over in Los Angeles Plaza."

"Hymie, I want you to take the offices over in City Center."

"Sarah, my dear wife, please take all the residential buildings downtown"

The nurse is astounded, and as Morris slips away, she says to the wife, "Mrs. Schwartz, your husband must have been such a hardworking man to have accumulated all this property.

Sarah replies, "Property shmoperty...my husband has a seltzer route.
