Slichos

As the month of Elul draws to a close, the mood of repentance becomes more urgent. Prayers for forgiveness called selichos are added to the daily cycle of religious services. Selichos are recited in the early morning, before normal daily shacharis service. They add about 25 minutes to the regular daily service.

The first selichos service of the holiday season is held around midnight on Motzai Shabbos (the night after the sabbath ends; that is, after nightfall on Saturday). The remaining selichot services are normally only attended by those who ordinarily attend daily shacharit services in synagogue.

A fundamental part of the selichot service is the repeated recitation of the "Thirteen Attributes," a list of G-d's thirteen attributes of mercy that were revealed to Moses after the sin of the golden calf (Ex 34:6-7)

Parshas: Ki Savo

The parsha begins by describing the annual mitzvah for farmers in Israel to bring their bikurim, or first fruits, to the Kohen in the Temple. The donor was then to recite a prayer of thanksgiving, recalling how G-d had delivered his ancestors from Egypt and brought the new generation into a land flowing with milk and honey. Moses then teaches two special mitzvos, which the Jewish people are to perform upon entering the land of Israel. First, they are to inscribe the entire Torah on twelve large stones. Second, the twelve tribes are to ratify their acceptance of the Torah in the following manner; six tribes were to stand on Mt. Gerizim, representing the blessings, while the remaining six tribes were to stand on Mt. Eival, signifying the curses. The Levites were to stand in the valley between, reciting blessings and curses which will apply respectively to those who observe and defy the Torah. The parsha concludes with a recounting of the wonderful blessings G-d will bestow upon the Jewish people for remaining faithful, and a chilling prophecy of what might happen if the Jewish people do not follow the Torah.

It's Elul – Teshuvah is in the Atmosphere

"On the Shabbat before Elul... there was a change in the air; one smelled already the Elul-scent, a teshuvah-wind was blowing" - Rabbi Yosef Yitzchak Schneersohn

To keep body and soul together, the human being needs air, water, food, clothing, shelter—in that order. Without air, G-d forbid, he would expire in a matter of minutes. He may survive a few days without water, a few weeks without food. The need for clothing and shelter are less immediately apparent, but without them man would ultimately succumb to an environment often hostile to his life and health.

Not incidentally, this order also describes the relative accessibility of these resources. Shelter is the most toilsome (and expensive) of human needs to acquire. Clothing less so, food yet less so, water even cheaper and more available. Finally, air, the most crucial resource of them all, is the most bountiful and the most effortless to attain.

Thus, the idioms "a change in the air," "Elul-scent," and "teshuvah-wind" in the above quote from Rabbi Yosef Yitzchak are not mere poetic figures of speech, but also express a truth about the month of Elul and the spirit of teshuvah that pervades it. Teshuvah, the endeavor to cut through life's accumulated debris of failings and inequities and touch base with the untarnished purity at the core of one's soul, is a year-long endeavor for the Jew. But in the month of Elul, we enter into an atmosphere of teshuvah.

In Elul, teshuvah is no longer a matter of cataclysmic "moments of truth" or something to be extracted from the depths of the prayerbook. It is as plentiful and accessible as air: we need only breath deeply to draw it into our lungs and send it coursing through our veins. And with Elul comes the realization that, like air, teshuvah is our most crucial resource, our very breath of spiritual life.
